The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

5,340

Roosevelt's dollar a word pales into insignificance when compared with Peary's $1.25.

State Supt. of Education Stone expects that the coming census will show an improvement in Vermont as regards illiteracy, and the state hopes so.

The various Vermont newspapers which are making a joke out of the unfortunate position of Elroy Kent, condemned murderer, fail to appreciate that a human life is at stake.

The town of Windsor had a gala day yesterday, when ground was broken for a huge machine shop, the operation of which promises to bring a wave of prosperity to the town. Windsor is one of the live towns of Vermont, and it promises to be among the leaders in the industrial life of the state.

To the list of things enumerated by Governor Proctor, for which we should be thankful, there needs to be added the settlement of the labor dispute in the Barre granite industry. If that settlement is made, it will be a fairly cheerful Thanksgiving hereabouts, in spite of some other hindrances.

The ease with which safe-cracking is done in rural districts is nothing compared with the neatness and dispatch with which crooks cracked two safes on Broadway last Sunday morning, while the Saturday night crowd had not all disappeared and policemen were supposed to be patrolling the section.

A pony was shipped from here Saturday by the Proctor stables to Editor Frank A. Greene of the St. Albans Messenger.

There's a small "horse" on Editor Frank L. Greene for a certainty, for he himself is a stickler for accuracy of initials, and it is now his fate to have his own Lester confused with Adoniram, Abijah or some other A.

About the last straw to break the camel's back is the suggestion advocated by a correspondent of the Bellows Falls Times for the state of Vermont to grant pensions to veterans of the Civil war, on top of the pensions which they are getting from the United States government. That certainly would send the Vermont treasury into bankruptcy, if it should survive the drains on it from other sources.

MOUNTAIN CLUBS DOING GOOD WORK.

Perhaps one of the best ways to bring Vermont's mountains into prominence is the method pursued by the people of Waterbury and Windsor, who have formed organizations to further the interests of Camel's Hump and Ascutney mountain. As most of the people in this vicinity have learned, the former association, or club, maintained a sleeping tent at the summit of the Hump, with a responsible party stationed there all the time to aid the several hundred travelers who found their way to the top. Those who made the tedious ascent appreciated the efforts which had been made for their comfort, and many of them contributed liberally toward the furtherance of the scheme. Farther south in Vermont, Ascutney mountain has a rude house for the shelter of the visitors, and the Ascutney Mountain association has charge of the building and, besides, looks after the repair to the mountain roads and the preservation of the natural beauties of the mountains.

Through these efforts a great many people will be attracted to Camel's Hump and Ascutney, and it would not be surprising if the work should culminate in the erection of hotels, either on the summits of the mountains or in close proximity to the bases of them. At any rate, even if the building of the hotels is delayed for a considerable time, the attention put forth by the two associations will do much toward bringing those people into Vermont who delight in the ex-

We read a good deal in the papers about "Vested Interests" but how about your interest in vests? Our assortment this Fall is made up of the cream—every novelty that has caught on on Broadway is represented here. Our New York Resident Buyer sees to it that our store is a mirror of New York fashions.

The old fashioned way was to stock up twice a year—but we have new stuff in small quantities coming every day. Price $1.50 to 5.00.

A hilarious sport of mountain climbing. The associations deserve more hearty cooperation than has been accorded them.

CURRENT COMMENT

Who Has It Right.

In a Middlebury Register editorial published elsewhere in this issue, our old friend Joseph Battell, shies again at the automobile, of course, but more amusingly so this time because he endeavors to create the impression that automobile travel does not help summer hotels. He laughs at the small editors that do not know anything about the hotel business and yet advocate the encouragement of this travel in Vermont as a benefit to the hotel business and a reason for the building of more and better hotels.

Perhaps the editors might ask Mr. Battell if he is himself a practical hotel man or if he ever conducted his own hotel property in an out-and-out practical way as hotel men view the matter-of-fact business side of their occupation. Mr. Battell is noted in Vermont for his generosity with his purse in many ways, and it has sometimes been said that he has not had just that kind of an acquaintance with the summer tourist business that would enable him to understand the hard-and-fast dollars and cents possibilities in it, at all. On the other hand, The Messenger only a few weeks ago had good first-hand testimony from one of the most expert hotel men in this part of New England, at least, who knows the summer hotel business from a to z and whose family are all born Bonifaces, and his tale of what the automobile travel does for the summer hotels and what it does for other local interests, what it leaves for supplies and repairs and storage in the communities it visits, what the tourists purchase in souvenirs, luxuries and necessities apart from their stay at the hotel itself—all these things as he told them were widely different from the opinion of Mr. Battell.

Mr. Battell is a good citizen but auto-suggestion has disturbed some of his original good intentions.—St. Albans Messenger.

It Is Coming.

Yesterday The Messenger reprinted an article from The Boston Herald on the strange neglect of the promising opportunities for the development of the summer tourist business in Vermont. In the article was this significant paragraph:

"St. Albans, with an ideal location on the Great Back Bay, has not had a hotel large enough to accommodate the guests since the burning of the old Welden ten years ago. New York capitalists have offered to build a large hotel there if citizens of St. Albans will take $50,000 of stock, but that has not yet been raised after two years of effort."

The writer of this article shows a very intimate knowledge of the general situation throughout the state, and he sizes up the condition here in St. Albans accurately enough with the particular exception of the time in which the people of this city have had in which to decide whether they will contribute to the new hotel project or not. They have not had two years or even one to discuss the very latest proposition that has been laid before them, but they have known, or they ought to have known, for the past twelve years that they were utterly neglecting one of the very best opportunities to share in this rising tide of tourist business that shows itself everywhere in the state.

It is a singular but not unfamiliar commentary upon such matters that experienced strangers who see St. Albans for the first time instantly comprehend the great possibilities here for the establishment of a prosperous hotel of this kind. Perhaps we who dwell here share in all the business advantages that lie at our very door. Familiarity breeds contempt in more ways than one.

But St. Albans is going to have a new hotel, and it will soon be "up to" the people of this city to take their own fair share in the enterprise and develop it with a fair share of their own capital and take a fair share of its profits into their own pockets, or permit outsiders to exploit to their own advantage the opportunity that belongs to them.—St. Albans Messenger.

Many Families Coming From Canada.

The newspapers, particularly those on the north side of the Canadian boundary, have recently devoted generous space to the number of people said to be migrating from the United States to the Northwest provinces in the Dominion. There is another side to the picture, and it may be natural that we on this side of the international boundary should turn our eyes toward the reverse.

United States Consul H. D. Van Sant writes from Kingston that since January 1 emigrants' effects certificates to the number of 110 invoices have been issued at the Kingston consulate, covering household goods and personal effects taken into the United States from that part of Ontario province of Canada. The consul comments as follows:

These goods mostly represent the belongings of young married couples and farmers moving to the United States, principally settlers for New York state. As the population of Kingston has increased only 20 during the past year and the births exceed deaths by a wide margin, the natural loss in population is explained by the removals to the United States and western Canada. As each settler's effects certificate usually represents a family that will average four, the gain in population to the United States for the past nine months from this city and vicinity will reach 400. Add to this the number moving to the States without household effects and the loss to Kingston would be nearly double, or 800. This condition largely prevails in other towns and cities of eastern Ontario.

We subject to the action of Consul Van Sant in sending all those emigrants to New York. Vermont is entirely willing to permit Consul Van Sant to officiate as one of the advance agents of its increased immigration and advancing prosperity.

As a matter of fact, however, we have no reason to complain in this connection, when we recall how many families find their way into Vermont from the province of Quebec, and judging from the prospective large expansion in our territory this immigration from the Dominion is likely to materially increase.

THE WAY OF IT.

A man and woman ride
Within a street car,
But if she be not fair,
With age or tugging stooped,
We notice in the car
That this they will be grouped.

—Him.

A married pair go out,
And in an auto race,
No has no eyes for sight,
Save tearing holes through space,
And therefore we observe
That this each takes a place:
Him,
Her.A youth and maiden ride
Upon a street car,
Their seats seem lightly on,
And all with frost is gay,
And we observe they sit
In just about this way:
Him, Her.

An Old Story.

"Chester says that his boy is wonderfully smart."

"Yes, but Chester ought to know better than to build any experience on that. I can remember when Chester's father said the same thing about him."

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The lady to her who had risked her life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

No Worry.

SKIN CURED THROUGH SKIN.

Old Way of Doing the Stomach Abandoned by Specialists.

Suppose you scratch your hand—do you dose the stomach to cure the wound? Don't you wash and cleanse it instead, and thus let the skin cure itself?

It is the same with eczema and other skin diseases. To accomplish this cure, the best medicine is Oil of Wintergreen Compound, and this must be used in liquid form. The liquid penetrates to the inner skin and kills the germs while soothing the healthy tissue.

This oil of wintergreen compound, known as D. D. D. Prescription, has only been sold at $1.00 a bottle. But on a special offer, we have now arranged with D. D. D. Laboratories for a trial bottle at 25c. It will stop the itch instantly, and we hope you will try it on our assurance.

MONTPELIER

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Richardson of Minneapolis, Minn., are visiting at the home of O. H. Richardson, his brother. Mr. Richardson has visited Vermont only twice in 32 years, his last visit being four years ago. He intends to leave Thursday for New York, where he will spend the winter with a daughter.

Superintendent P. S. Smith has had some of the water department men out inspecting the water outlets in this city and trying to locate any leaks that may exist. Property owners will be obliged to remedy any waste, so that the consumption of water may be cut down as much as possible. The saving is liable to be needed in the next few weeks, as the water is lowering in the pond all the time.

A new series of entertainments for boys is to be started by the Y. M. C. A., similar to those carried out in behalf of the older members, and a special boys' entertainment committee, consisting of Benjamin Gale, Fred E. Glawson, George Hamline and George K. Putnam, will have the matter in charge. The idea of the committee is to provide some form of entertainment for the boys and young men of the association, which will be in a lighter vein than the concerts and lectures being given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at the present time. It has been decided to hold three different entertainments along this line during the winter, the first of which will probably come off some time next month. It will be preceded by a drill, so that, in addition to providing amusement for the boys, it will afford an opportunity for the different classes to give an exhibition.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Clever Comedians Are with Phil Ott's Company at Opera House.

Phil Ott and his clever comedians drew a large house at the Barre opera house last night, and it might be added, a well-pleased house, for the fun which they made made almost anybody smile, even the sourest "grouch" in Barre. There wasn't much of a plot to the effort last night, as usual in the comic opera line, but there was plenty of life to make up. The company plays "The Boston Belle" this evening, and undoubtedly will continue to draw large audiences through the remainder of its stay, which means Wednesday night.

"The Boston Belle."

Not since the days of "Charlie's Aunt" has anything appeared to compare with the delightful comedy of "The Boston Belle," which is correctly advertised as being a furiously funny musical extravaganza. This piece is replete with mirth-provoking situations, plenty of pretty girls, tinsel musical numbers, picturesque scenery, elaborate costumes and funny comedians. The story of the play is as follows:—

Miss Geraldine Van Austin has eloped with August Summer, Jr., to get married. They arrive at Somerset, Mass., and are surprised to discover their parents at the hotel. The parents have also eloped to get married, and complications follow thick and fast.

General Delivery has just married Mrs. Cobb, a widow. He is surprised to learn that his wife has several husbands and that they all disappeared very mysteriously. He becomes a hopeless wreck and lives in horror of being poisoned. Shortly afterward, they all imagine themselves poisoned and many excruciatingly funny incidents follow. Many bright and clever numbers are introduced, among them the song hits, "General Delivery," "Tottie," "Whirling," "I'll Be There with the Bells On," "Noble Reds," "Flora," "Dreaming," "Brother Caruso," etc. Watch for this company. Phil Ott's comedians, and remember, they have no rivals.

RANDOLPH

J. B. Putnam is the guest of Alonzo Emery for a few days.

Guy Lamson has been suffering several days from an inflammation in his right eye.

John Hovey of Barre has been a recent visitor at A. N. Angell's and George Webster's in East Randolph.

Mrs. Fred Terry and her sister, Mrs. Gibbs, from White River Junction, were in Barre with friends on Sunday.

Mrs. P. E. Crow entered the sanatorium last week for a slight surgical operation, from which she rallied rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Terrie, who had been several days with their daughter, Mrs. Edwin Scott of Barre, returned home Sunday night.

Mrs. L. A. Noyes and daughter, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Sharpe, have gone to their home in Springfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John Manney and two daughters, Misses Bertha and Evelyn Manney, passed Sunday in Bethel, the guests of Mrs. H. H. Gilson.

James Judd has sold his farm on Brantree branch to George Mudgett, from whom he purchased it about four years ago. Mr. Mudgett will not take possession till May 1.

I. D. Litchfield has leased the rooms formerly occupied by Granville Barnes in the DuBois &amp; Gay block, and will open a meat market there as soon as the room can be made ready to occupy.

W. H. Pierce received quite a serious injury in his right hand while at work in Seabury Brothers' mill last week, by a stick which was thrown from the saw with such force as to make quite a wound.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Atwood have returned from Greenboro, after having passed several months in their cottage there, and are now established in their home at the corner of Fales and Franklin street for the winter.

SOUTH ROYALTON.

M. S. Adams was in Randolph Saturday on business.

Mrs. Henry Fox and son of Stratford are visiting friends in town.

W. E. Webster and wife left Monday for California to spend the winter.

Mrs. Elvira Brownell, who has been in poor health for the past year, is falling very fast.

Mrs. E. H. Foster returned Sunday from a visit in Salem Mass., with her daughter.

Dr. E. J. Fish and son, Harold, went to Boston to play on the week to witness the football game.

Such a Mean Trick.

"Come home with me to dinner to-night, Gormley."

"Delighted."

"I want you to hear my youngest daughter play the piano."

"By Jove, I'm awfully sorry, old chap, but I have forgotten a most important engagement. Some other night, dear boy."

"Sorry about the engagement, Gormley. The fact is, I have neither a youngest daughter nor a piano."

Larry Was Prepared.

"Well, Larry," said the genial manufacturer, "I hear that you are much interested in aerial sports these days."

"Yes, sir," responded the coachman with the big volume under his arm; "that is why I bought this book."

"Ah! You want to learn how to go up in an airship?"

"No; I want to learn how to come down. That is why I bought 'The Descent of Man,' sir."—Detroit Free Press.
